Customer Reviews

“The structure and presentation of all three chapters is excellent. All of the chapters are easy to understand and very well written. The chapters cite current research that is relevant to the topics presented. I am excited about the new changes and look forward to utilizing them next semester.”

—Amy Resch, Citrus College

“It was engaging and the presentation of families with realistic questions helped to show students how to make application of the material.”

—Peggy Skinner, South Plains College

“The examples are good and well written. The personal perspectives that are given also put things more into real life situations for the students.”

—Myra Harville, Holmes Community College

Joan Littlefield Cook is a Professor of Psychology and current chairperson of the Psychology Department at the University of Wisconsin-Whitewater. As an undergraduate she majored in Psychology at Tennessee Technological University. She earned a Master's and Ph.D. in Psychology and Human Development at Vanderbilt University. Joan has taught courses for more than 20 years related to child and adolescent development, educational psychology, and cognitive psychology. Students have always appreciated her knowledge of the field and her ability to present information in a way that is useful, motivating, and friendly. The Student Association at the University of Wisconsin-Madison voted her as one of their most outstanding professors, and the UW-Whitewater Psychology Student Organization presented her with their Excellence in Teaching Award. Joan's research is on mathematical problem solving and cognitive development, and she is currently involved in projects to support and assess critical thinking in college students.

Greg Cook is a Professor of Psychology at the University of Wisconsin-Whitewater. Greg majored in Psychology at the University of Dayton and later received his Ph.D. in Psychology at Vanderbilt University. Greg has worked in higher education for more than 25 years. He's taught courses in child development, research methods, statistics, and related topics at Whitewater as well as at the University of Wisconsin-Madison and Vanderbilt University. At Whitewater Greg received a department award and also a College of Letters and Sciences award for excellence in teaching. Currently, Greg is the Associate Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs at UW-Whitewater.

love the book

Great product!

I'm probably just super nerdy but I enjoyed this textbook a lot. First class ever that I actually did all the assigned reading!

Thanks,but I need it to return,but don't know the adress

It met my expectations . Thank you very much !!

Very good in general.

Very informative book with great educational materials to learn from.

1/3rd the cost the bookstore was going to charge me, always recommended
