Synopsis

#1 New York Times bestselling author Maeve Binchy tells the story of a generation and a city through the history of a Dublin restaurant in this “warm-hearted” (Boston Herald) enthralling novel. Ella Brady wants to film a documentary about Quentins that will capture the spirit of Dublin from the 1970s to the present day. After all, the restaurant saw the people of a city become more confident in everything from their lifestyles to the food that they chose to eat. And Quentins has a thousand stories to tell. But as Ella uncovers more of what has gone on at Quentins, she begins to wonder whether some secrets should be kept that way... “Quentins is not just any Dublin restaurant; it’s a place where wedding proposals, business deals, family ties, and friendships are forged (and sometimes broken).” •The Seattle Times

Customer Reviews

I absolutely adore Maeve Binchy's ability to bring her readers along for the unravelling and intertwining of everyday life on Tara Road.

Page turner. Skipped my chores and read the whole book in one day, almost forgot to eat my lunch. Excellent.

I loved this book from start to finish and I didn't want it to end. I would definitely recommend it!

The characters in Quentins are all people I would like to meet. Maeve Binchy has a way of making you feel welcome, a participant, not a bystander to the story.

It started out rather slow but became quite interesting and enjoyable.

Like this author. Not profound but engaging

Fabulous read! Couldn't put it down.

Great book, nice to get reacquainted with former characters and still have a great story line.
