My 7 year old son loves the Magic Treehouse books and these fact-trackers have been a big hit as a follow up. The reading level is a bit advanced over the companion stories. He can read them both with ease, but comprehension on these is a little harder as they get into scientific terms and non-fiction reading is just a little less familiar for him. I think these are books he will read and re-read (vs. the stories that he might not go back to). The Twisters Fact Tracker in particular was very interesting for him and our son loved sharing facts with the rest of the family for days!

very satisfy

Tells the absolute truth about these weather phenomenon

Informative

My granddaughter loves this book! She has referred to it many times. She's very interested in weather-related subjects.

My students thoroughly enjoy this book. They love the non-fiction books in general. We actually used this for research on a natural disaster project this year and this was perfect.

Introduces children to weather and the more dramatic phenomena associated with it. Tasteful and fun.

Great book. My daughter is in 4th grade and read this book for a non fiction book report.
