Rachel Allen was brought up in Dublin and at eighteen left to study at the prestigious Ballymaloe Cookery School in County Cork. Today, she not only teaches at the school but writes regular features for national publications, presents highly-acclaimed TV programs and in her spare time, writes bestselling cookbooks. She lives in near the sea in County Cork, Ireland with her husband and three beautiful children.

I am not familiar with Rachel Allen, but I am quite familiar with her mother-in-law, the well known chef and cookbook writer Darina Allen, who started a famous cooking school at Ballymaloe House in Shanagarry, County Cork, Ireland...and her mother-in-law, Myrtle Allen, she who started the now famous hotel and restaurant in Ballymaloe. It is quite an accomplished cooking family. So when I saw a review of Rachel's latest book...she has written 8 or 9 cookbooks..I thought it would make a nice gift to myself. And I was right! It is a very attractive book, full of many beautiful pictures of the completed recipes, some lovely ones of the Irish countryside and a few of Rachel and her handsome family. There is a nice variety of dishes, soups, everyday dishes, ones for special occasions, vegetables and side dishes, breads, desserts, cakes and cookies, many with a unique Irish feel. There are 120 recipes in total, many marked as being vegetarian, but a nice selection of meat and seafood dishes as well. I must say, the number of recipes I am looking forward to making after paging through this book is long. Kale and Bean Stew.. Sticky Cumin and Apricot Roast Carrots and Parsnips... Pork and Mushroom Pie... Dark Sticky Gingerbread.. to name just a few. Every recipe includes a little introduction by Rachel, telling the place of this dish in Irish culture, such as Ballymaloe's recipe for spiced beef, or in her own family history, like her father's favorite Ginger Cookies. I have a number of Irish cookbooks and yet found many new ideas in this one. Still, for those not familiar with Irish cooking, beyond that corned beef and cabbage, this would make a wonderful introduction.

I do like this book, however, some of the recipes have been previously printed in her other books. I couldn't believe it! I thought I was seeing double when I looked through another one of her books that I received at the same time. Even the photos are the same! It does state that some recipes have been previously published in her other books, but I think you should be aware of this before purchasing. I'm sure the publisher could have asked her to do some new recipes. Slightly disappointed.

I love this book. It's filled with solid, substantial meals that any family will enjoy. This is real comfort food and everything that I've tried came out fantastic. I particularly love the Irish Soda bread and the fish cakes. Your children will love this food.

I bought this book for my mother who is a collector of cookbooks. Never did I think I would fall in love with it. Before giving it to her I skimmed through it once, twice, and the third time I was going page by page. The recipes are easy to follow, the pictures just lure you in. I couldn't wait to start making some of the dishes. The ones that I have made are delicious. This book is worth its content.

I bought this book both for my own mom and for my mother-in-law. They both really loved it and were extremely fond of the commentary and photography in the book. It is aesthetically pleasing book and can be used as a coffee table book as well. Truly an exceptional piece of work by an exceptional author! I would highly recommend this book!

Lovely laid out book with great recipes and pictures. Updated and easy recipes really bring home Irish cooking to those that want to pass on some heritage to their children.
